Ossessione ([?s??s'sj?ne], "Obsession") is a 1943 Italian film based on the 1934 novel The Postman Always Rings Twice, by James M. Cain. Luchino Visconti's first feature film, it is considered by many to be the first Italian neorealist film, though there is some debate about whether such a categorization is accurate.

Ossessione is a key work of Italian cinema, cited by writers such as Marcia Landy as the first work of Italian Neo-Realism (rather than the more frequently cited Rome, Citta Aperta). It is also a European work that is influenced by James M Cain's classic slice of roman-noir, The Postman Always Rings Twice- which would also influence Camus's L'etranger. This is the ideal introduction to ...

Ossessione is not as noirish as The Postman Always Rings Twice. It has a strong neo-realist look which makes it a great movie, but a lot of the essential noir elements are missing. It does not have low-key lighting and unconventional camera angles. The dialog is not hard-boiled and instead the film concentrates more on characterization. This is the longest version of the story and goes deeply ...

Luchino Visconti's Ossessione is one of the best movies ever. A brilliant cast, headed by Massimo Girott and Clara Calamai totally eclipse the later MGM remake, The Postman Always Rings Twice, or any other version of the James Cain story. Visconti's adaptation is grittier, a fore-runner of Noir and Neo-Realism, and sexier. The Italian release by Ripley's Home Video has the best visual quality ...

Ossessione reeks of primal, base, and animalistic emotions. whatever Visconti was doing here he got it right. no american postman can fill these footprints regardless how many times he rings her doorbell. in this world, their clothing is worn, tattered, poverty is rampant, and the neo - realism is profound. the film goes directly to where the lives play out up and down coastal italy.

Memento è una riflessione sulla criticità della memoria collettiva quando prende forma nello spazio pubblico come segno del controllo egemonico o come atto di resistenza, come abilità mitopoietica delle comunità. Dagli apparati del potere alle esperienze del contro-monumento, dalla pianificazione urbana al controllo tentacolare sul tempo nel postfordismo, si scopre nell'ossessione per il visibile l'orizzonte di confronto tra la capacità eversiva dell'arte e del pensiero critico e la colonizzazione dell'immaginario nella società dello spettacolo. Memento parte dal caso del mai compiuto monumento a Costanzo Ciano a Livorno, costeggiando l'estetica dei totalitarismi europei, e analizza alcune possibilità dell'arte internazionale negli ultimi trent'anni, fino a un volo radente sulle più recenti sperimentazioni degli artisti italiani nell'approcciare la materia del potere, le sue forme, le sue narrazioni e le alternative, nella condivisione e nella partecipazione. Un approfondimento riguarda il legame tra la corruzione del linguaggio e il conformismo. Le conversazioni con Jochen Gerz e Thomas Hirschhorn concludono il libro proponendo due diverse visioni sui temi del monumento, dell'autorialità, della politica della sfera pubblica. Pietro Gaglianò (Vibo Valentia, 1975) è critico d'arte e curatore. Dopo la Laurea in Architettura ha approfondito il rapporto tra l'estetica del potere e le libertà individuali, prediligendo il contesto urbano, architettonico e sociale quale scena delle pratiche artistiche contemporanee. Ha curato progetti e mostre in Italia e all'estero. Da anni sperimenta formati ibridi dello spazio di verifica dell'arte, in cui esperienze di laboratorio e formazione si innestano sul modello tradizionale della mostra e del convegno. Dal 2016 cura il festival di libri d'arte Scripta Festival (Firenze).

"The following thesis focuses on the Italian director, Luchino Visconti and his first feature film, Ossessione. It evaluates his film in relation not only to the director's biography but also to its historical and cinematic context. It deals with the manner in which Ossessione was adapted from an American roman noir, refashioning it in its own distinctive way. In addition, it analyses the film's relation to generic modes of representation, specifically realism and melodrama, and concludes by situating the work as a precursor of the Neorealist movement of the mid-20th century." --

Andrew Marlow è uno psichiatra di fama. Sposato al proprio lavoro, conduce una vita solitaria e ordinata. La sua unica vera distrazione è la passione per la pittura, che pratica da dilettante senza estro. Quando Robert Oliver, tormentato genio dell'arte, viene affidato alle sue cure dopo essersi scagliato con furia contro un quadro raffigurante Leda e il cigno, in esposizione alla National Gallery di Washington, l'equilibrio di Marlow inizia a disfarsi. Un fitto mistero avvolge Robert, che si rifiuta di parlare ma disegna di continuo una donna dal viso antico e lo sguardo triste. Chi è? Ha a che fare con le lettere ingiallite da cui Robert non si separa mai? Scoprirlo diventa la privata ossessione di Marlow, che dovrà affrontare un viaggio perturbante
